

18th Sep 2023

Test

Q1 - Computer generation means the new version of computer series. In this the new features is added in the new generations of computer. Reason for that to serve the shortcoming of the existing computer.

A1 - Digital computer are those computer through which the user can do anything. Like in hospitals digital computer are used for making records of patients.

Analog computer are those computer which is used for specific purpose like Thermometer, monitor in hospitals these are used for specific purpose.

A3 - Computer is an electronic device that process data into useful information to the users.

* Classification of Computer :

① Digital Computers :- This computers are used only in restricted place. This computers are not portable i.e. we can't take from one place to another.

② Mini Computers :- As the mini computers are very small in size. It can be easily take from one place to another. And it is more powerful than micro computers. It has more storage capacity.

③ Micro Computers :- Micro computers are less powerful than mini computers. It has small storage capacity.

④ Main Computers :- This computers are more powerful than micro and mini computers. This also has more storage capacity.

⑤ Super Micro Computers :- This computers are most powerful than all other computers. This computers has large storage capacity.

Other computers.

① Printers :- Computer is an electronic device that processes data into useful information.

② Digital Language :- These computers are used for any purpose. These computers are used in hospitals for maintaining records of the patients.

③ Analogy Computers :- This computers are used for specific purposes like thermometer is used for measuring temperature only and aneroid are used in hospitals.